

It's Vital to Upgrade Anti-Virus Software

In the last month, three of the most potentially damaging viruses have been detected in the wild [affecting users' computers].

The MiniZip (ExploreZip), BubbleBoy, and MyPics have all recently proved that losing all data and programs is a very real possibility for users who Internet access, are connected to a corporate network, or who insert disks into their computer.

It's very important to purchase a top-grade anti-virus software checker like McAfee VirusScan. This program is my favorite because updates are available a few times each month, and it will find and kill just about all viruses in the wild: before they do any damage to my computer.

Whatever anti-virus product you buy, make sure you immediately visit the manufacturer's website to download the most current update. Store-bought software won't do you much good against recent, popular viruses because the viruses were created after the anti-virus software was stocked.

Reason #429 to Train at Damar Group

You learn what you say you need. Our classes are small: never more than eight participants, and our trainers ask everyone to help set the class objectives before the exercises begin.

If you need emphasis on a specific topic, ask for it. You'll get it.

Website Helps Disabled

Friday, December 3d is the United Nations International Day of Disabled Persons. On the same day wemedia.com, a full-service destination website for people with disabilities debuted.

The site offers information, education, products, and services for disabled persons and their families. The Census Bureau reports that 10% of Americans have a severe disability such as blindness.

DVD Products Delayed

Instructions telling how to duplicated DVD recordings were posted to a Norwegian website last month. With the risk of piracy, many DVD makers will delay new products. Details at dgl.com/itinfo/1999/it990203.html.
